Jindal Centre for the Global South (JCGS) is a research centre affiliated to the School of International Affairs at Jindal Global University (JGU) and draws researchers from across the faculties of social sciences and humanities from inside and outside JGU. The Centre brings research expertise together at Jindal Global University in relation to the Global South, promoting interdisciplinary cooperation among faculties, researchers, and students in India and internationally.

By bringing together faculty from a variety of disciplines across the social sciences and humanities inside and outside JGU, Jindal Centre for the Global South aims to further top-level international research on Global South studies, development finance and South-South Cooperation as well as become an intellectual platform that facilitates innovative solutions to the problems of the Global South.

ABOUT THE SECOND INTERNATIONAL E-CONFERENCE OF JCGS

The Global South's economies have flourished in the first two decades of the twenty-first century. Following the financial crises that hit Asia and Latin America in the 1990s, both regions' economies have gradually developed, exhibiting significant resilience during the Global Financial Crisis, 2008.

Many countries from Global South have successfully reached high levels of growth and development during the last two decades. National governments' efforts enhanced democratic governance and sustainable development outcomes. The free movement of trade, investment, finance, technology, and other goods and services between Southern countries and the rest of the world grew rapidly.

Emerging economies that have chosen to invest in knowledge-based growth, experienced positive cross-sectoral impact in human development indicators, competitiveness, and economic performance.

The GDP of the Global South, which represented about 20% of the world GDP between the early 1970s and the late 1990s, doubled to 40% in 2021, with China alone accounting for 18% of global GDP. This has shown itself politically in the emergence of new plurilateral groups like the IBSA Cooperation Forum, the BRICS, and the G20.

Jindal Centre for the Global South's conference will bring together the academic community, policymakers, and practitioners to examine and better understand the profound challenges to the international system post Covid-19 pandemic and the movement from the old 'unipolar' global order of the nineties to a "multipolar order" with a clear representation of the Global South. The conference would also discuss the impacts of Covid-19 on the emerging geopolitics during the present decade and beyond.

The Conference will additionally address the structural challenges and emerging issues that the Southern countries are facing in pursuing sustainable development. It will identify policy recommendations, which will significantly impact the extent to which the countries can meet the SDGs and recover from the COVID-19 crisis.

SCOPE OF THE CONFERENCE

The conference panels will be covering five regions of the Global South: Central Asia, Asia Pacific (Indo-Pacific), Middle East and North Africa, Sub-Saharan Africa and Latin America and the broad themes of discussions will address the following (not exclusive list):
